

Culley Vineyards

2007 Marlborough Pinot Noir

- WINERY: Cable Bay Vineyards was established in 1996 by a small group of wine lovers who are passionate about wine. Neill Culley, owner/winemaker, comments, "Our goal is to produce premium wines that express the unique attributes of the individual vineyard sites", says Culley. "Having a portfolio of vineyards provides a range of fruit with different characteristics, giving robustness while reducing the risks normally associated with single sites. Our process focuses on small lot winemaking to handle the separate parcels of fruit from the various vineyards. This results in wines with their own personality."
- The Culley range of wines, named after Neill Culley, produced from Marlborough fruit, and are stylish, fruit-forward and vibrant. The range also offers an affordable introduction to the Cable Bay range of wines.
- DESCRIPTION: This wine displays an attractive mix of berry and spice flavours balanced by a fine silky texture and lingering finish. An ideal wine to enjoy on its own or with food.
- VINEYARDS: The grapes for this wine are grown in the Rapaura region of Marlborough. A selection of Pinot Noir clones are grown (Clones 667, 777 and clone 5).
- WINEMAKING: Each clone is harvested and fermented separately before it is blended and aged in French oak.
- PRODUCTION: 5000 cases
