

Young's Vineyard 2005 Sangiovese

WINERY

Young's Vineyard is nestled in the soft hills near the entrance of the Shenandoah Valley. When Steven purchased the property in 1992, there was an operating winery producing 1,000 cases of wine with seven acres of grapes. Today production has increased to 6,000 cases of wine. Consisting of our Estate Cabernet Sauvignon, Zinfandel, Syrah, Sangiovese, and Barbera. The property is 30 acres, of which 20 are planted and producing. The reputation and demand for Young's wines has grown tremendously over the years.

Young's Vineyard is truly a family affair. Steven and his wife Annette were married on the property in 1994. His father, Stell, a retired Army Colonel and pilot, is a vital cog in both the vineyard and winery, and serves as chief tractor driver and head wine maker. Mother, Mary, serves as our honesty broker and keeps all of them on the straight and narrow! Rounding out the family workforce is Steven's talented sister, Sharon. She paints the original Harlequin artwork that is found on the labels.

DESCRIPTION

Steven Young describes the Sangiovese like this. "This year we added about eighteen percent of our Cabernet to the Sangiovese to create a Super Tuscan style wine. The color is one of the deepest I have seen in a Sangiovese and the mouth feel is full with a long luscious finish."
